To the front of the property is extensive gravelled parking together with an Integral Garage and useful pedestrian side access.

Instow, itself, is regarded as one of North Devon's premier coastal villages, offering a unique blend of relaxed seaside charm and everyday convenience. The sandy beach, yacht club, delicatessen, pubs, restaurants and cafés all contribute to the village's thriving atmosphere, while the nearby Tarka Trail provides excellent walking and cycling opportunities.

Area Information

Instow is an iconic village in North Devon perched at the point where the River Taw and River Torridge meet before joining the Atlantic Ocean – all within sight from most properties in the village. It also enjoys great views of its sister village Appledore on the opposite bank.

Wired into local transport links you can be in the heart of Bideford in minutes on the bus, and Barnstaple within 20 minutes. It has a primary school, a community hall and churches, including the interesting Italianate All Saints Chapel.

Instow has lots of places to moor a boat if you have one, as well as a shop, post-office, and a delicatessen. Locals make good use of the beach and the small dune system close by (look out for the rare Pyramid Orchid when the season is right). The Tarka Trail runs through the heart of the village where the railway used to run. There are still traces of the railway all around the village including the country's only Grade I signal box. The film about yachtsman Donald Crowhurst – Deep Water was filmed in Instow in 2015.
