Hidden in Plain Sight

Located near the beautiful historic parish of Oakford, just north of Tiverton and close to Exmoor National Park, this property offers a peaceful retreat with an abundance of charm.

When I visited High Bolham, I was immediately struck by the beauty of the gardens and paddock. They are truly stunning and have been carefully established by the current owner. To the northeast of the property, the grounds are home to a wide variety of mature plants, trees, and shrubs. Beyond this lies a large paddock area with a stable block, hard standing, and sculpted areas perfect for greenhouses or poly tunnels. From the property's snug, there is access to a terraced area, offering side access to the rear of the home. This terrace is ideal for alfresco dining, providing a perfect setting for outdoor meals.

Beyond the formal gardens at the front, there is a gravel parking area, with a gated entrance to the paddock, all enclosed by mature hedging.

The living space within the property exudes both elegance and comfort. The snug, believed to be the old pump room, offers a cosy retreat, while the sitting room features a beautiful open fire. The well-appointed kitchen and dining room are complemented by an inviting log burner, creating a warm and welcoming atmosphere. Additionally, the ground floor includes a well-equipped family bathroom, offering comfort and convenience for all.
