Nestled in the sought-after town of Magherafelt, Foxfield Hall offers the perfect balance between relaxation and convenience; set in a tranquil, semi-rural location with every amenity you could possibly need just minutes from your front door.

The beauty of Foxfield Hall stretches far beyond its vicinity.

All this and more on your doorstep.

Just a stone's throw away from the grassy shores of Lough Neagh, Magherafelt has a history built around local industry, and retains a strong market town character today; from the local butchers, bakeries and greengrocers, to the bustling town centre and its tight-knit community feel.

Whether it's exploring the myths and legends of Church Island on Lough Beg, mountain biking through the rugged trails of Davagh Forest, or setting sail from the glistening waters of Ballyronan Marina, this location offers acres of unspoilt scenery and natural beauty.

Magherafelt is a town with a story to tell – take the time to visit the mid-17th century Springhill House rightfully hailed as 'one of the prettiest houses in Ulster' and the Seamus Heaney Centre, which pays homage to the great poet and Nobel Prize winner.

Perfectly styled homes for anyone wanting to lay down roots in a thriving community.

There's a reason why so many people choose to make Magherafelt their home.

Not only is it at the gateway to an abundance of open spaces, the town is home to a wide variety of convenience stores, ladies boutiques and sporting clubs, as well as restaurants, cafés, pubs and a vibrant nightlife scene.

What's more, the area is a mecca for sports enthusiasts: from Meadowvale Equestrian Centre and Meadowbank Sports Arena to Greenvale Leisure Centre and Moyola and Ronan Valley Golf Clubs. The ever-popular Jungle NI is also a haven for outdoor pursuits, and offers fun days out all year round!

For those making the daily commute, the Magherafelt bypass and Translink Bus Centre offer great transport links to Belfast, Londonderry, and beyond.
