Raymond,
We confirm our site visit 22nd Jan 2008 in the company of Raymond Ferris of PPC Group and James McClements who is constructing the foundations for the above dwelling. Our brief is to assess and advise on foundations on variable stratum.

Viewing from the site entrance:
Ground to the left hand has been excavated to a bearing stratum of shaley rock at approx 0.5 metres below the surface. Foundations for the kitchen and living / dining areas will be on this stratum.
Ground to the right hand has been excavated to a depth of approx 1.1 metres. Examination of an area of this stratum showed a stiff greeny grey coloured clay at approx 1 metre below the surface. Foundations for the bedroom areas, entrance foyer and living room will likely be on this stratum.

The following details were agreed.
Trench cutting into the stiff clay up to a suitable formation level for the foundations, over which strip foundations in 25 Newton concrete will be constructed.
Strip foundations are to be 300mm deep with a layer of A393 mesh reinforcement placed approx centrally within the depth of the founds at the transition between rock / stiff clay and should extend 2 metres into the rock area and 2 metres into the clay area. Laps in the mesh should be not less than 400mm.
All water and loose disturbed material is to be removed and foundations cast onto undisturbed stiff clay or rock.
