An exceptional, Grade 2 listed Georgian home in the delightful Co Armagh village of Loughgall and featured in CEB Brett's "Building of County Armagh". Built or developed by John Hardy circa 1820 incorporating to the rear much of the original dwelling referred to in a lease dated 1753.. A Northern Ireland 'listed building' description makes reference to the fine columned door case and unusual window detail. The Hardy family in the 1820's had approximately 1500 acres in the area. Mainly due to their expertise they eventually became land agents to the major land owners, the Cope family.

The property has been exceptionally well cared for over many years and the original defining period features have in recent years, been added to by the addition of unique period antique Irish fireplaces, period decoration and superb presentation.

The property boasts many features found in a modern home offering a delightful internal ambiance and charm of both new and old that will have wide ranging appeal.

The flexible accommodation comprises four main reception rooms, five bedrooms, a well fitted kitchen with adjoining study area and utility room. There are three ensuite shower rooms, a main bathroom, an attic area with three fireplaces and additionally a substantial basement level with at least five storage/utility areas. Additionally the property benefits from oil fired central heating, an easily maintained rear garden and a highly impressive vista from the front . The overall character of this charming home demands an internal inspection. We are delighted to have the opportunity to market such a residence.
